

Target Audience

This activity has been designed to meet the educational needs of internal medicine physicians, family medicine physicians, advanced practice nurses, physician assistants, nurses, interns and residents in primary care specialties, and medical and nursing students involved in the care of oncology patients.

Overall objectives

At the conclusion of the learning activity, participants should be able to:

- Discuss and describe current evidence-based screening criteria for skin, prostate, lung and colorectal cancers to initiate appropriate diagnostic testing and referrals for appropriate and timely medical management.
- Review and discuss medical advances in oncology that continue to improve medical management and patient outcomes, including: role of surgical intervention in hepatobiliary tumors, advances in radiation technology, and improvements in surgical/medical management of gynecological malignancies.
- Explore and discuss the impact of a genomic VUS (variant of uncertain significance) and its application in clinical practice and the impact of a genetic VUS findings in real-life case examples.
- Discuss new approaches to cancer detection and screening including technology used in multi-cancer detection tests and results from multi-cancer blood tests.
- Review current guidelines regarding treatment of oligometastatic breast cancer and explore future treatment options.
